ART MATTERS—Contemplated Bust of the Newly-elected President.—The reputation of our townsman, Thomas D. Jones, whose bust of Hon. Thomas Ewing has been generally admired, together with the desire of a number of citizens to possess a bust of Lincoln, has induced them to commission Mr. J. to execute the work at his earliest convenience. It is expected that he will proceed imme-diately to the task, which we doubt not he will perform in excellent style.

AN ALLEGED COUNTERFEITER COMMITTED ro Jail.—Richard Sellman and Dr. Drake, who, our readers will probably remember, were arrested last Sunday upon a charge of dealing in counterfeit money, were arraigned before Judge Lowe, yesterday morning, for examination. Their tools and plates were brought forward as silent witnesses against them, and these, combined with the testi-mony of the arresting officers, after a careful hearing of the case were deemed with the hearing of the case, were deemed sufficient to convict the pseudo-physician, and he was therefore committed to await trial before the next term of the Court of Common Pleas, in default of bail in the sum of $2,000.

POCKET-PICKING AT THE OPERA-HOUSE,— While several thousands of our fellow-citizens, by the aid of wordy resolutions and not remarkably brilliant speeches, were endeavoring to save the Union, yesterday afternoon, at the Opera-house, a number of pickpockets availed themselves of the op-portunity to help themselves to their neigh-bors purses. Three men, whose names we were unable to learn, were relieved, re-

Sudden Death of an Old and Wellknown Citizen,—Most of our readers will learn with regret of the death of Daniel Van Matre, Esq., which took place at noon yesterday, at his residence, No. 130 West Ninth-street. He had been somewhat unwell for several days, but was not seriously indisposed, and regarded his illness as merely temporary. He died very suddenly while sitting in his chair, and his demise was apparently as unexpected to himself as to his relations and friends. He was one of the oldest members of the Ciucinnati bar, and for a number of years served the city in the ca-grievances too numerous to be mentioned in a journal of the dimensions of the Parss. The writers seem to forget the fact that one of the purposes for which cities are built is to inculcate the virtue of patience upon the minds of the inhabitants, and, of course, the city authorities, including the Street Commissioners, endeavor to do their duty in this them to bear their grievances, and may possibly result in calling the attention of the authorities to the cause of their profaulty.

ago, in the presence of some of his admirers, when we were informed that the work had already been done by a lady of this city, who has devoted much of her time to scuipture, and among those lovers of art who have seen the productions of her chisel, has attained considerable reputation.

We have not seen the bust, and therefore can not speak of its merit; but have been assured that it is exceedingly life-like and natural. The features are represented as perfect fac similes of the original; and the characteristics, so strongly marked in Mr. Emerson's face, have been retained in the marble with a degree of fidelity that surprises, and at the same time gratifies the best of the most horough manner, and has caused the intellect of the nuther of Representative Men and English Traits to speak through the Parism in which his features have been preserved.

moved the adoption of the report entire, which was carried by acclamation.

The Union Meeting Yesterday was quite largely attended—there being more persons present than could be comfortably scated in the Opera-house. Upon the stage were a considerable number of the solid men of Cincinnati—mem whose wealth and social position gave to the scene an aspect of dignity and importance. A brass band occupied the orchestra, and at intervals, solaced the audience with a variety of patriotic strains and ars pregnant of stirring recollections. At two o'clock the chair was taken by the Mayor, who called the meeting to order. The blessing of Heaven was then invoked upon its deliberations by Right Reverend John McIlvaine, Bishop of Ohio. On motion of G. Brashears, Esq., a Committee of Five was appointed to report resolutions expressive of the sense of the meeting and the following persons were named for that purpose: Nathaniel Wright, Larz Anderson, Rufus King, W. W. Scarborough and James Hall.

Hall.

It was moved by the same gentleman that all resolutions offered by individual members of the meeting be referred without debate to the foregoing Committee.

Against the adoption of this rule R. M. Corwine, Esq., protested, and, after some little conversation, the motion was laid on the table.

The Union Meeting Yesterday,

the table.

After the Committee had retired, the Mayor proceeded to state the object for which the meeting had been called. He alluded feelingly to the threatening aspects of the times, expressed the opinion that a better understanding of each other's feelings and characters was necessary to restore harmony between the North and the South, and alluded to the meeting of the Legislatures. luded to the meeting of the Legislatures of Kentucky, Tennessee, Ohio and Indiana, which occurred a few months ago at the same place, and the cordinlity which was then felt and expressed, as avidence of a willingness on both sides to maintain not the Union merely, but the most intimate and friendly relations. The remarks of the Mayor were well received and frequently applauded.

After the Mayor had taken his seat, a general call was made for Mr. Groesbeck; in obedience to which that gentleman took the

Mr. Groesbeck made his appearance, carrying in his aspect an air of settled melancholy, the effect of which upon the audience was at once perceptible. He commenced by expressing, in tones of extreme sadness, the opinion that the present condition of the country is exceedingly critical. We know not how suddenly not merely one, but several States may decide to secede from this Confederacy; nor are we able to calculate all the dire consequences of such an event. In the course of those agitations by which the present state of things had been brought upon us, all parts of the Union had brought upon us, all parts of the Union had been to blame. The North had done wrong; and so had the South; but the North and and so had the South; but the North and South, through misrepresentation, had been made to appear more inimical to each other than they are in reality. Mr. Groesbeck proceeded to speak of the personal-liberty laws of several Northern States as calculated to irritate, if not to injure, the South; and hoped that as an act of simple justice they would be repealed. He, however, did not counsel an exhibition of slavish subserviency to Southern prejudiess or ever, did not counsel an exhibition of slavish subserviency to Southern prejudices or Southern demands. Let us not make rash promises to do what we can not perform. Let us be sparing rather than profuse of our literature. The South will despise us as we shall deserve to be despised if we send a roll of sounding nonsense or an array of doughface resolutions. All that we can do is to express our love for that Union to which we owe so much, and our willingness to sacrifice every thing but principle and self-respect for its preservation.

fice every thing but principle and self-respect for its preservation.

Mr. Groesbeck spoke nearly an hour; and his speech had many passages that were truly eloquent. It was frequently and warmly applauded. At its close, the Com-mittee on Resolutions, by its Chairman, Na-thaniel Wright, Esq., made the following report; which—Mr. Wright's voice having failed—was read by Hon. Rufus King, with great propriety of tone and accent, and was great propriety of tone and accent, and was received with tumultuous and long-continued applause:

received with tumultuous and long-continued applauses:

1 That we carnestly cherish the Federal Constitution, the integrity of the Union, and the peace and security of all its citizens.

2. That we hold spession by a State, or resistance by any State to the Federal laws, to be meconstitutional and revolutionary-se be met with firmness, but yet in a spirit of forbearance and conclination.

2. That we hold all State laws, opposing the just execution of the Fugitive-slave law, to be not only inconstitutional and void, but mischievens in their influence on the feelings of the people both. North and South; and that all good chizans will unter the effect the repeal of such laws.

3. That the clause in the Constitution, which guarantees the remittion of fugitive slaves, was indepensable to the repeal of such laws.

4. That the clause in the Constitution, which guarantees the remittion, and is indispensable to the existence, of the Union, right in Itself, and necessary to the South; and every good citizen will intifully sustain the execution of the laws made in persuance of that provision.

5. That we most carneatly disapprove of and condemn the uncandid and unjust donnentations in each section of the country against the people of the other, which have for so many years been prevalent, and which, criginating with a few, have at length fixed the prejudices, sublittered the follings, and misguided the indepenses of many; and we believe the uncandid discussion of the alavery question to be one chief cause of the political evils of the day.

6. That we—in common, as we believe, with the mass of the Northern people—hold in utter detestation and abhorrence any effort to funcal insubordination or insurrection among the slaver; and that all good citizens will be faithful to humanity and cligion, as well as to law, is opposing to the union and suborrence any effort to funcal insubordination or insurrection among the slaver; and that the land; to make the North and South more accurately acquainted with the real circumstances of

to the hearts of all its people their ancient faith and love.

S. That "deternal vigilance is the price of liberty," and every citizen, high or low, rich or reor, must contribute to the price, or expect to loss the treasure; and, therefore, we call upon all, in this eventful crisis, to awake, throw off the aincides of party, and work like men in the cause of the Union.

S. That a committee of thirteen he appointed by the Chairman, at his leisure, to prepare and publish an address on the subject of the Spregoing resolutions, and to take such other steps as they may deem proper to advance the general object of this meeting.

The question being on the adoption of the resolutions, R. M. Corwine, Esq., rose to speak; but the programme read Hon. Henry Stanbery, and to him the place was accorded. It was obviously the part allotted to Mr. Stanberry to explain to the audience the standard of the s expressions respecting concession and con-cillation that occur, rather incongrously, at the close of the second resolution; and this the close of the second resolution; and this he did, apparently to the satisfaction of those who do, as well as those who do not, advocate coercion. He was opposed to the employment of force to keep a State in the Union, and yet opposed to permitting it to go out of the Union, upon any terms whatsoever. He considered the Union as peculiarly fortunate in being able to escape the necessity of enforcing its laws in South Carolina, in consequence of the resignation of the Federal Judges in that State; and went on to show how the Federal Government could enforce the revenue laws without the necessity to employ coercion directly upon the sity to employ coercion directly upon the people—thus throwing the odium of a first resort to arms upon the other party. In respect to the revenue laws, his views were species and rational; but he did not show satisfactorily how the Administration can legally evade the appointment of Judges in the place of those who have resigned, or how escape the enforcement of their decrees, even to the employment of the military arm for the purpose. His closing remarks were judicious and patriotic, and were well re-must be preserved; closing by prescribing a return to the Missouri Compromise as the step now first to be taken. He was followed by Mr. Corwins, who spoke of his wish to move a rejection of the last resolution; he had concluded, however, not to make the motion, and after some suitable remarks,

Major Finnell, of Covington, was called for, but declined to make a speech. He ex-pressed in strong terms the pleasure he had received in witnessing the proceedings of the meeting, and his hope that they would be productive of those feelings of conciliation ow so much to be desired; and, on motion

City Council-Proceedings Last Night. The Council met at the usual hour, President Torrence in the chair. been drinking together during the greater part of the day, embarked in a skiff, and two of them were never afterward seen. It was supposed that they had gone upon a fishing excursion, and as the body of Wright was subsequently found in the river, it was also supposed that the entire party had been drowned.

Since the interment of the body, however, developments have been made which render it somewhat probable that his death was caused by his companions, and that, after the homicide, they had fled to parts unknown. In evidence of this, it is said that Wright and the German, had been crue Wright and the Germans had been gam-bling, and that they had lost money to the amount of nearly $100, which the deceased and upon his person when he entered the Pike's Opena-nouse. - Our play-goin Pike's Opena-House.—Our play-going readers will lear in mind, we hope, that this evening is set apart for the benefit of Mr. Charles Hale, the worthy and excellent comedien of the Opera-house. His personations during the season have earned for him a high reputation among the judicious, and fixed the belief of the justly critical that he is one of the best artists that has ever appeared in the city. He thoroughly comprehends and represents the parts he undertakes; depending upon no mere power of caricature or mountebankism for success, but displaying by a complete and uniform development of the character his accurate conception and careful study of the author.

Mr. Hale sustains the role of "Bottom" in Midsummer Night's Dream, and renders it All distance Night's Dream, and renders it vast'y droll, causing frequent laughter by the faithfulness of his interpretation of Shakspeare's good-natured bumpkin. The Dream is magnificently put upon the stage, and ever lover of beauty should witness it.

Melopeon Hall.—The royal wizard, Hambujer, will open the Melodeon next Monday night. He is represented as one of the most skillful prestignators in the world, and will introduce a number of tricks which are said to be entirely new, among which is the famous "second sight," which so poxted our amusement-lovers during the stay of Heller at Wood's Theater. His performances will doubtless be interesting, and we heartily advise our readers to prepare to be heartily advise our readers to prepare to astonished.

WASHINGTON, December 19. SENATE—Mr. Toombs made his appearance in the Senate.

Mr. Clark noved to take up the resolutions of inquiry offered by him relative to the fort at Charleston.

at Charleston.

Mr. Green suggested that the Senator from Oregon, who was not present, wished to amend the resolution.

Mr. Clark withdrew his motion.
Mr. Slidelt said a dispatch of the Associated Press from New Orleans, December 17, said Senator Sidell, in a speech charged President Buchanan with imbecility and authorship of the present crisis. He said there was no kind of truth in such dispatch. He never intended any thing of the kind, and never felt such a sentiment. Who sent such a dispatch? Was it the receiver of the A a dispatch? Was it the reporter of the Associated Press in the galleries?

If no explanation was offered, he should move to-morrow for the expulsion of the reporter from the gallery. He charged the Associated Press with sending dispatches from the South Intended to do harm. This dispatch was a base fabrication.

Mr. Gwin said his name had been associated with that chief the South later was a base fabrication.

Mr. Gwin said his name had been associated with that of the Senator of Louisiana, as using hard words to the President, and advising him to resign. There was not a word of truth in such a story.

The bill to carry out the existing treaties with Mexico was taken up, but was postponed to allow Mr. Hunter to report a bill. Mr. Hunter, from the Committee on Finance, reported the House bill making an appropriation for the payment of invalid and other pensions for the year ending June, 1862. Also, the bill making an appropriation for the support of the Military Academy. Both bills were passed. Both bills were passed.

The consideration of the bill to carry out the treaty with Mexico was resumed.

Mr. Johnson resumed, and said when he gave way yesterday he was speaking of Northern laws conflicting with the Fugitive-slave Law. He proceeded to show that such laws were unconstitutional and nullifying The Government should enforce her laws it the States and such not be considered in vasien.

He argued against the right of secos-sion, queting Madison and Jefferson. Secession is aggression and rebelliou; and if the Government failed to perform its duty in this respect, it is at an end. He called attention to Jackson and Webster's views on this subject. The Government was called into existence by all the States, and single States could not break it; the Constitution to the law passed in Congress in taxing distilleries, and part of the people of Pennsylvania resisted; Congress then enforced the laws, but there was no talk about coercion; there is no difference between that and resistance by the whole people of a State.

Mr. Johnson eulogized Gen. Jackson. If South Carolina secedes and undertakes to drive the Government from its property it is levying war, and that is treason and nothing

Mr. Etheridge moved to lay it on the table.

It was tabled by three majority.

The consideration of the Territorial business was postponed.

Mr. Sherman, from the Committee on Ways and Means, reported a Bill, making an appropriation for Legislative, Executive and, Judicial expenditures, for the year ending June, 1862.

ing June, 1862. Mr. Sherman offered a resolution, which was adopted, instructing the Committee on Public Lands to inquire whether any officers connected with the Surveyor-General's Office can be dispensed with.

The House went into Committee on the

The House went into Committee on the Deficiency Appropriation Bill.

Mr. Sherman offered an amendment approriating $900,000 to carry but the law for the suppression of the African slave-trade.

Mr. Phelps was willing to vote for this appropriation for the reason that Cougress ought to make other provision than now exists for taking care of recaptured Africans in Liberia, instead of appropriating about one-sixteenth of the yearly revenue for that purpose.

Mr. Sherman said the question was not as to the propriety of the law, but as to its execution. The Secretary of the Interior has pressingly asked for this appropriation.

Mr. Sherman caused a letter to be read, from the Secretary of the American Colorization Society atthict but the Government. for that purpose. nization Society, stating that the Government of Liberia has charge of nearly 3,800 recaptured Africans, and has only received $25,-000. Unless a speedy provision be made in Liberia, he would be compelled to protest Liberia, he would be compelled to protest against any more recaptured Africans being landed on that coast.

Mr. Sherman said whatever may be the defect of this law, this appropriation is required to meet the contract.

Mr. Jones remarked that paying Liberia liberally for recaptured Africans has the effect of increasing the number, for the more captured, the more money that Government gets; therefore the Secretary of the Colonization Society does not care how many are recaptured from now till doomsday.

Mr. Maynard said the slave-trade was not carried on between this country and the single carge of slaves, except by the racht

States. The trade was carried on between Africa, and perhaps two or three provinces in the dominion of Epain. England, by her treaty with Spain, can, if she chooses, close those ports to-morrow, or as carly as her inclination prompts. England also has treaties extended all along the African coast, closing that part of the world to the slavetrade, but by her counivance, not to say participation, this traffic is permitted to be carried on, while the United States Government is made from time to time to play the ried on, while the United States Government is made from time to time to play the part of a police on the seas to capture slavers at a great expense every year. This is an attitude in which the Government ought not to be placed; it is on that Congress ought to take steps to obviate it.

Mr. Price would refuse to pay any more appropriations until there was a reform in this system, providing for the maintenance of recaptured Africans. The Republic of Liberia is in the extremity of being swamped by these shirtless camibals. He was for giving Liberia an opportunity of illustrating her capacity for sell government. He appropried of the plan of Great Beltsia, viz. Taking recaptured Africans into quasi apprenticeship.

Mr. Sherman explained that the appropriation asked for is to carry out an exist-

the President can make a contract with any ther party.

Mr. Burneit said that the law passed last session was not only inhuman but cruel. It caused recaptured Africans to be carried im-mediately back to Africa, and their mortality on shipboard was about fifty per cent. He was willing to vote money we actually ows and are pledged to pay. The only course for our Government to pursue is to apprentice such Africans as Great Britain does. The character of the negroes would thus be given such Africans as Great Britain does. The character of the negroes would thus be given and an opportunity given to Christianize and philanthropists to civilize them.

Mr. Crawford said there was not a word in the act of 1810 for the support and maintenance of recaptured Africans for a year thereafter. If they were landed on our shore there might be some propriety in sending them tack. He did not believe there were 160 men in Georgia in favor of reopening the slage trade. He would never vote a dollar for the support of Africans alread but lar for the support of Africans abroad, but would vote for their support and return to their own country.

Mr. Cobb asked if an amendment would be Mr. Cobb asked if an amendment would be in order, providing that whenever a slaver is captured, the negroes to be taken off, the ship scuttled and the officers and crew allowed to go down in her. He was satisfied that Southern men would never be engaged in the slave-trade. He also desired to prevent her Northern friends from building ships and sending them out in this hellish traffic.

Mr. Breck, who had the chair, said it would be in order to move for a sinking fund to buy off the cupidity of Northern slavers, but not to sink crews. [Laughter.]

Mr. Reaman was opposed to taxing the people to pay for civilizing and Christianizing negroes when they were brought to Florida through Yankee cupidity.

Mr. Clemens desired to settle fine question at once. The President has already become responsible, under the construction of an existing law, for the support of the negroes in Africa to the extent of $900,000, and it was for us say whether we should continue this not thus construct.

this act thus construed. He learned that the law authorizes the President to maintain negroes thus returned for one year, by which expenditure this large sum has been incurred.

John Cochrane thought that Africans sent to Liberia, under the law, should not be received there and left to perish. The law never contemplated such an outrage upon humanity.

Mr. Clemens contended that the law would bear no such construction as the President would give it.

Mr. Cochrane resuming, said that the law of humanity recognized such a construction and that Congress, at the last session, thus construed the law of 1819, where it authorized the President to feed and clothe them in Liberia. He opposed the plan of Great Britain as being more outrageous and objectionable than any other disposition that could be readed of them. would give it. could be made of them. of humanity. Mr. Bingham opposed the amendment of Mr. Kunkel thought the present laws defective, as they had not produced a suppression of the slave trade.

The original resolution, appropriating $900,000, was adopted.

The committee then rose.

Mr. Burnett moved to reduce the amount one-half. Rejected.

Mr. Sherman reported a bill making an appropriation for certain expenses.

An ineffectual effort was made to adjourn over the holidays. Adjourned.

Mr. Hill, in a blaze of eloquence, characterized separate action as right accomplishing its own defeat, liberty forging its own chain, happiness poisoning its own cap, prosperity committing suicide. That as there is a common interest, there should be a co-operation among the Southern States. The resolutions were adopted—fifty-six to fifty-four. A reconsideration was lost. Mr. Delany's bill, protecting the citizens of Georgia from process in the Federal courts, was lost by sixteen majority.

W. L. Harris, the Commissioner from Mississippi, was courteously received by the Legislature. He spoke Monday. One thousand copies of his speech have been ordered.
